Subscribers to Woodson Wave Report have commented that Elliott Wave can seem complicated and difficult to understand but at WWR we make it much easier to comprehend. The simplest way to achieve that understanding is with pictures, or charts. With the fifth of a fifth of a fifth wave top approaching, we thought in keeping with the idea of making things simple that we'd show you charts of the fifth wave targets at every degree of trend from the low of wave C on 12/28/18 as the market closes in on the wave D target high.

From the 12/26/18 low 5 =1 at 3055 (chart 1).

This is a direct hit on our Fibonacci expanding triangle pattern which calls for a top in wave D at 3054 on 9/28/19. The upper trend line touches 3035 on 8/16/19 which is a Fibonacci 233 days for the length wave D and then again at 3054 on 9/28/19 which marks a Fibonacci 610 days for the length of the triangle from the start in January of 2018 to the wave D high. See chart 6 below.

Fibonacci Expanding Triangle Wave D, E projections (chart 6)

Wave v from the 06/3/19 wave 4 low (chart 2) shows a projected target price of 3026. The remaining charts from minute to minuette and subminuette degree have further to go until we can calculate a fifth wave high but we did so anyway with chart 4 projecting a Fibonacci .382 retracement for wave (iv) which then projects a high in wave (v) at 2973. Note that chart 2 targets 2970 for wave v high.

Near term summary: See chart 5. Look for a pullback in wave (iv) to 2935 (Fibonacci .382 retracement), then a move up to 2970 – 2973. Once complete, expect one more retracement of that five wave advance (we’ll calculate that once the market achieves this target), before the S&P sets its sights on the 3035- 3054 price target for wave D.
