From yesterday's report:

“Allow for a final push up in wave e to 2940 early tomorrow.”
 How's 2940 in the first minute of trading for “early” tomorrow?

Yes, the S&P achieved our ideal 2940 target in the first minute of trading today, August 30, 2019 and never looked back. We now have the completed pattern we've been anticipating and we can once again trade with a high level of confidence going forward in wave (v) down. Also, the hourly stochastic finally broke after 10 consecutive hours in an oversold condition. See chart above.

Downside targets:

2900 = .382 retracement from 0823 low.

2887 = .500 retracement from 0823 low.

2874 = .618 retracement from 0823 low.

2825 = wave (v) = 1.618 of wave (i).

2822 = move below this wave (iii) low eliminates a move > 2950.

2744 = open gap from June 3, 2019.

2605 = wave 3 = 1.618 of wave 1 and a Fibonacci .618 retracement of rise from Dec. low. A nice temporary stopping point for the end of a wave down but not the end of the entire wave E decline.

Upside resistance:

2940 = top of channel line. Achieved today.

2950 = Fibonacci .618 retracement from July 26, 2019 high

2957 = Wave (i) low.

The market hit our ideal target price of 2940 at the open creating a fantastic opportunity to layer in puts for the coming decline. We made a net realized profit of $1,427 today on 15.90% gain today.
